Booker Washington Speaks Before Atlanta Audience.

WHITES PRESENT

Occasion Was a Church Anniversary Celebration-Governor Terrell, of Georgia, Sends Message cf Welcome.

Booker T. Washington, head Tuskegee Institute, spoke in Atlanta, Ga. Monday night to a large audience -mostly white-on "Harmony Between the Races." He was the guest of the First Congregational church, colored, which celebrated its thirty-sixth anniversary. Washington's address was delivered at Turner's Tabernacle on Yonge tIn his every utterance there was an appeal for the black men to recognize the fact that their best friends and their best interests were in the southland, and that it was for them to improve these opportunities in such a way that the white men would recognize their ability as laborers and admit the fact that they could not get along without them.

"Work, work with your hands and put the best that is in your nead into the work of your hands. Do it better than any one else can do it. But your own houses. Buy land. Have a bank account. Don't spend seven days at a camp meeting when you ought to be improving your farm. Learn how to use your hands in such a way that no one else can take your place. Be tax payers. And when you are tax jayers you will have the best interests of the community in your heart, and this much mooted race question will have many of the eight thousand occupaats been settled

So preached Booker Washington, inand pertinent stories, sometimes pa- Monday, and took breakfast on board thetic, more often humorous, but with the Kearsarge. a homely truth so strongly borne out that no one could mistake the purport and the mission of the experience or

During the debate there was consid erable feeling displayed by some of the speakers, but it was all in good nature, and the evidence was abundant that every vote was the result of an honest, straightforward opinion as to the merits of the measure. One or two of the numerous amendments offered were adopted, and when the favorable report of the committee on education was agreed to by a vote of 91 to 38, the advocates of the measure seemed to think they would have things pretty much their own way. It was very evident, however, that some members, voted in favor of the report of the committee simply with r view to having a final vote taken or the bill, and that on the final vote they ware recorded against it.

As on the day before the gallery was crowded with interested listeners, and now and then Speaker Morris had to demand a cessation of applause.

Judge Jones is a man of great ability and great personal magnetism, and the measure. A strong effort will be it is understood that the president has been greatly pleased with the strong position he has assumed in the punishment of those men who have been engaged in the practice of peonage. It is pointed out that the speeches of Judge Jones as a member of the late constitutional convention in Alabama, in which he took strong grounds against the grandfather clause in the people at a crossing eight miles east constitution and against the suffrage of Cincinnati Thursday night, killing provisions generally that looked to the five and seriously injuring four of the disfranchisement of the negro, first attracted the attention of the president Robert Copenhaven, with his wife to him, and to these speeches and to the strong and manly grounds taken in defense of the political rights of the colored man was largely due his anpointment to the district judgeship, These peonage cases, though greatly exaggerated, have again served to call the attention of the president and the attention of the country to Judge Jones as a man of courage, and who is statement to the district attorney prac- whistle, stopped and could not be capable and worthy of a seat on the court of appeals, or even on the bench
